In the 75 years since its inception, the National Health Service has consistently been ranked the best health care service in the world. This is because the model of a publicly accountable, publicly funded, universal health care service works. However, after years of de-funding and growing privatisation, the NHS is currently facing its worst crisis ever, with waiting lists of over 7 million, a staffing shortfall of 132,000 and 100s of preventable deaths every week. The Government is undermining the NHS so it can increase profit-making potential and has created an unequal two-tier health system. Yet, there is a direct correlation between increasing outsourcing to private companies and falling standards in health care provision! The public model works. The private model doesn't. But this isn't what drives the Government. That's why we need to grow the campaign to Keep Our NHS Public.
